Springboot With Docker and Docker-Compose from scratch

Priyadarshani Pandey

.

Follow

Published in

The Startup

.

10 min read

.

Jan 15, 2021

--

1

Share

Containerized development has taken the world of software development to a new shift in terms of how the developers now write, test, and deploy the applications. While earlier, we needed specific applications downloaded and installed on our machines to write and execute a certain piece of code, it's no longer an impediment because every single module can be packaged with all its dependencies into a container with the help of Docker. Multiple such containers serve as units of modules forming part of a larger application.